the plans filed by the Richmond and Henrico Company in its proposed West and such goods subject to taxation is no longer enough—he must swear to it before a duly authorized person, and the future tax-dodger may face not only a grand jury inquiry, but an order of the committee, Chairman Ordway Puller announced yested this date for a public hearing, when all alter or a public hearing. when all citizens desiring to present their views may come forward, before the committee takes up in detail the plans presented by the attorneys and engineers of the two companies.

The Fulton Hill Line.
In the East End the negotiations are only with the Richmond and Henrico Company. As a condition of securing his vote for the pending light and power franchise, that company gave bond to Alderman Nelsen, of Fulton, to build a line up Fulton Hill to the Na-tional Cemetery. The company expresses itself as indifferent as to the route. It has promised to build a line that will not pay operating expenses rectly called to the income tax, the personal property tax, and the tax on capital in business, and efforts to understate these classes may be considered by future grand juries as deliberate efforts at tax-dodging, in regard to which it will be useless to plead ignorance.

The real estate assessment is believed to be practically complete, and those who attempt to avoid payment of taxes on real property soon fall into the hands of the land grabbers.

Will Yield Larger Income.

Although a very large number of persons voluntarily came forward and increased their assessment of taxable values for last year, when the attention of the public was called to observe the interest of certain property owners. The plans filed by the company propose a change in the present Fulton loop. Tracks will be laid, connecting with the existing rails at Fifth and Louisiana, crossing the Virginia Railway and Power Company's tracks, thence along Fifth to Orleans, to Fulton, to Louisiana, to the existing track. The routing of the proposed extension provides that the inbound car will come along Carlisle Avenue, outside of the along Carlisle Avenue, outside of the corporate limits, down Virginia Street to Malone, to Louisians, to Gilliam, and along existing tracks to Nichol-son, to Erin, to Denny, to Fulton, to Louisiana. The first will connect with the northern track at Sheppard, and run north on Sheppard to Broad, out Broad to the Roseneath Road, and south to Kensington. The southern loop will operate south on Roseneath Road from Kensington to Grove, along Grove to Dooley, south to Chaffin, and north on Sheppard to Kensington. Criticism has been directed against this plan because it calls for three grade crossings of Monument Avenue—at Lombardy or Meadow Street, Sheppard Street and at the Roseneath pard Street and at the Roseneath Road, and because the zig-zag winding route would increase the zig-zag whiting route would increase the time in getting to the West End. Objection may also be raised to the use of the Roseneath Road, hitherto a narrow driving thoroughfare, by street cars.

Virginia Health Commissioner Believes Pellagra Is Bad, but Thinks South Carolina Plan of Experimenting on Condemned Criminals Is Worse.

Down in South Carolina, where pellagra is a problem that vies in seriousness with child labor and Blease, the State Legislature has hatched out a drastic scheme to deal with the discase. Representative Welch, of Richland County, who is sponsor for the plan, has wisely tempered it with a touch of mercy, on the strength of which it is on the way to become law. Mr. Welch's bill, which was reported favorably from the committee, and has passed its first reading in the lower house, creates a State board of physicians for the study of pellagra, and provides that any condemned murderer who desires to submit to experimentation can secure a pardon by placing his body absolutely in the hands of the pellagra board.

The plan is simple. The condemned murderer has only to decide if he prefers certain death at the hands of the State to indefinite existence at the hands of the pellagra board. The board may nail him in the end, but there is a gambler's chance that he will beat their game. He has all to gain and nothing to lose. That is the Welch view.

Dr. Allen W. Freeman, assistant commissioner of the Virginia State Health Department, has another.

"Such a plan," said Dr. Freeman last tion."

The plan, said Dr. Freeman, is not original is south Carolina, it has been original in South Carolina, it has been in South Carolina, it has greaterally failed—largely because the number who volunteered for experimentation was too small to give the findings scientific value.
